PREFACE

This book is the embodiment of a desire to make available for reference the data concerning the Establishment of the Church of England in the Province of Maryland, which was authorized by an Act of the Provincial Assembly in 1692. Where possible, information has been added concerning the formation of the parishes with their original metes and bounds, the first Churches built, the first ministers who preached in Maryland and the first vestrymen who served the Church of England in the thirty parishes which were then laid out.

The encouragement given the author by the present Bishop of the Diocese of Maryland, the Rt. Rev. John Gardner Murray, D. D., is gratefully acknowledged. The valuable advice of Mr. Lawrence C. Wroth, Historiographer of the Diocese of Maryland, now Librarian of the John Carter Brown Library, Providence, R. I., the Rev. James M. Magruder and the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Gibson made the work of compiling this book easier and is deeply appreciated.

It was only through the enterprise of The Norman, Remington Company that the publication of this book was made possible. It is the author's hope that this fresh evidence of their interest in Maryland historical writings will meet with the appreciation it deserves from the book buying public. The author deeply appreciates the generosity with which they have treated him at every stage of the book's progress.

To Mr. Albert B. Hoen for the valuable advice and assistance given the author in making the map of Maryland (which accompanies this book) his sincere thanks are extended.

HISTORICAL NOTES

HISTORICAL NOTES

The Protestant Reformation in England resulted in the entrenchment of the Church of England as part of the government of the Kingdom and the consequent displacement of the Roman Catholic Church and the political and social disability of its members. At a later period the Puritan Churches also found themselves under distasteful restrictions and numbers of their adherents began to seek asylum from what they deemed unjust persecution. Coincident with the conception of America as the land of material opportunity had grown the idea of it as a place of refuge, and we find almost from the beginning of the American settlement the two motives animating the successive colonies. The first of these, however, was without religious motive. Virginia had been settled as a commercial venture. New England had meant opportunity and refuge to the Puritans, while the Province of Maryland meant opportunity and refuge to the Roman Catholic colonists whom Lord Baltimore led to the shores of the Chesapeake.

Virginia, settled in 1607, was a stronghold of the Church of England, and Maryland, being a provincial grant to a Roman Catholic, was received by the Roman Catholic Church as an opportunity for initial establishment of its power in this part of the New World. No such event took place, however, for it was not possible to establish an exclusively Roman Catholic colony under the English rule at that time. To this fact may be assigned the primary cause for the "Religious Liberty" enjoyed for nearly half a century by the settlers in the Province of Maryland.

Prior to the landing of Lord Baltimore's colonists at St. Mary's there were no settlements within the limits of the Province as specified in the Charter with the exception of those on the "Isle of Kent" and on Palmer's Island. The latter was within the mouth of the Susquehanna river. Eight years prior to the landing of the colonists, whom the fancy of one of Maryland's brilliant historians¹ has led him to call "Pilgrims," William Cleyborne traded, under license, with the Indians in the upper Chesapeake bay, establishing in 1631 a Trading Post on the "Isle of Kent." In that year there were about one hundred souls in that settlement and in 1632 the settlers sent a representative to the Virginia Assembly at Jamestown.²

In that year, 1631, Cleyborne brought to the "Isle of Kent" from Hampton, Virginia, the Rev. Richard James who conducted there the first service of the Church of England said to have been held in the territory now lying within the borders of Maryland. As this minister went to Virginia from England, "certified" by the Bishop of London, and thence to the "Isle of Kent," it will be observed that this was the first regular planting of the Church of England on what is now Maryland soil. It is quite probable that Mr. James conducted these services in the small fort which had been built on the extreme southern end of the island as a protection against the Indians.

The poet tells us that the "Pilgrims" of New England went to that land seeking "Freedom to worship God," but it was to the Province of Maryland, first of all the American colonies, that all creeds went assured of their freedom to worship as their conscience dictated. McMahan says "Religious liberty was subject only to the restraints of Conscience."³ Very naturally the question arises how such a condition was brought about since George Calvert, the first Lord Baltimore, was an avowed Roman Catholic and Cecilus Calvert, his son, who succeeded to his father's titles and estates, becoming the second Lord Baltimore, was also a Roman Catholic.

Born of Church of England parents at Kipling, Yorkshire, England, in 1582, George Calvert early developed into a man of large capabilities. James I, recognizing in him the qualities of an excellent business man as well as an astute politician, made Calvert one of his Secretaries of State in 1619.¹ In frankly announcing his conversion to the Roman Catholic Church he so impressed the King with his honesty that he was continued in the Privy Council and later, in 1625, made Baron Baltimore of Baltimore, in the County of Longford, Ireland.

Having failed in a former endeavor toward colonizing in bleak Newfoundland² George Calvert made a voyage, in 1629, to the Southern mainland of North America. Being impressed with what he saw, during this visit, in the Virginia Colony he asked for the territory now known as Maryland. There he had expected to offset the loss of the money sunk in his ill-fated project at Avalon and to build a fortune for himself and his family. There was also another object that he had in mind. As a secondary consideration he wanted to establish a refuge for his Roman Catholic friends—a place where they could practice their religious ceremonies without interference. Destined never to realize his cherished ambitions George Calvert died in April, 1632, before his promised charter to Maryland received the Great Seal.

The death of George Calvert did not prevent King Charles from signing the Charter on June 20, 1632, granting to Cecilius Calvert, the second Lord Baltimore, all that his father had asked. In giving him the Province of Maryland Charles I placed Cecilius Calvert in absolute ownership of all the land¹ lying within the bounds of the Province. McMahon says "this Charter was the most ample and sovereign that ever emanated from the English Crown."² In the Charter appears the following: "And We do by these Presents . . . make, create and constitute Him, the now Baron of Baltimore, and his heirs, the true and absolute Lords and Proprietaries of the Region [Maryland] aforesaid . . ."³ There would seem to be nothing to prevent Cecilius Calvert from using his authority, thus conferred, to adopt any religious policy for his Province that his ambitions dictated. True there was a provision in the Charter which held in check any very radical change from the laws of the mother country. The provision read in part: "So nevertheless, that all Laws aforesaid be Consonant to Reason and be not repugnant or contrary, but (so far as convenient may be) agreeable to the Laws, Statutes, Customs and Rights of this Our Kingdom of England . . ."⁴

In recognition of the magnificent gift, the Province of Maryland, and in acknowledgment of the overlordship of the King, Cecilius Calvert was required to yield "therefore unto US, our Heirs and Successors, two Indian Arrows of those parts, to be delivered at the said Castle of Windsor, every year on Tuesday in Easter-week: and also the fifth part of all Gold and Silver Ore, which shall happen from time to time, to be found within the aforesaid Limits."⁵

⁵ Charter, Section V.

The second Lord Baltimore, Cecilius Calvert, was a great-hearted far-sighted nobleman endowed with good common sense. He realized that he possessed an exceedingly valuable gift in this fine domain, interlaced as it was with beautiful rivers and divided by the great Chesapeake Bay. He appreciated fully the meaning of the various provisions of his Charter. He also realized that he held this Charter under a Protestant government and owing to the existing religious feeling in England it was impossible, "Absolute Lord" though he was, to establish an exclusively Roman Catholic colony. He shrewdly adopted as his policy "Religious liberty," for by doing so he avoided all conditions that tended to mar the success of his undertaking¹ of colonizing Maryland. He made no misstep, nor did he miscalculate his plans, for he was in possession of all the knowledge we now have bearing on those times, and also had the advantage of breathing the atmosphere of English politics of the day. Second only to the territory itself Calvert's policy of "Religious liberty" was his most valuable asset. Like all good business men he looked after his business assets with great care.

The encouragement given Cecilius Calvert by the gift of so generous a "grant" was sufficient to induce him to make a great outlay of money to fit out two vessels, the "Ark" and the "Dove," and also to provide nearly 300 colonists for the voyage to the Province in North America. The expedition left England on Saint Cecilia's Day, November 22nd, 1633, and Leonard Calvert, a brother of the Proprietary, was sent out as governor of the Province. After a long and stormy voyage by way of the West Indies they came into the Chesapeake on the 27th of February, ¹"The system of toleration was co-eval with the colony itself; and sprang from the liberal and sagacious views of the first proprietary." McMahan's Hist. of Maryland, p. 226.

1634. After sailing about the bay looking for the best place to found the city which they intended to build in the Province, they decided to land on an island in the Potomac River which they named, "St. Clements." Having made the selection of that place, they waited a day or two, probably in order that they might land on Lady's Day, the Feast of the Annunciation, March 25th, 1634. Upon going ashore they erected a cross and took possession "In the name of the Savior of the World and of the King of England." This was nearly three years after the Rev. Richard James, Priest of the Church of England, first ministered on the Isle of Kent.

The numerical majority of those who came to the Province in the "Ark" and the "Dove" were of the Anglican Faith.¹ The principal adventurers were Roman Catholics and as a consequence the religious tone of the early province was Roman Catholic.

There does not appear to be any record of an Anglican Clergyman among them nor of services held according to the rites of the Church of England very soon after the landing of the colonists. It is generally believed that Anglicans and Roman Catholics for some years used the same chapel at St. Mary's for worship. Doubtless the Anglican Church services were read by lay readers or by visiting clergymen from the neighboring colony of Virginia.²

Under the date of the 13th of November, 1633, Cecilius Calvert had given instructions to Governor Leonard Calvert and his two Commissioners, before they sailed from England for the Province, as follows:—

² The Rev. William Wilkinson, Rector of St. George's Church, Poplar Hill, 1650-1663, had loaned money in this vicinity previous to his moving from Virginia to Maryland as a permanent resident and apparently was drawn thither in person by the opportunity of ministering to the adherents of the Established Church of England.

VIEW OF ST. MARY'S RIVER AT ST. MARY'S CITY

Here Gov. Leonard Calvert landed, in 1634, and here the foundation of Religious Liberty in America eventually was established.

"No. 1 Impri. His lordship requires his said Governor and Commissioners that in their voyage to Maryland they be very careful to preserve unity and peace amongst all passengers on Shipboard, and that they suffer no scandal nor offence to be given to any of the Protestants whereby any just complaint may hereafter be made by them in Virginia or in England. And that for that end they cause all Acts of Roman Catholique Religion to be done as privately as may be, and that they instruct all the Roman Catholiques to be silent upon all occasions of discourse concerning matters of Religion, and that the said Governor and Commissioners treat the Protestants with as much mildness and favor as Justice will permit. And this to be observed at Land as well as at Sea."¹

It is apparent that Cecilius Calvert realized that it was essential that no offence be given to the Protestants. And also that only the fairest treatment of the colonists upon their arrival in the newly discovered country would keep the Province in his hands.

Indeed Calvert intended from the moment he conceived the idea of founding the Province of Maryland to insure religious toleration in the province by writing into his instructions orders to that effect. It is evident that he carried out his intention. As a case in point to show how diligently Leonard Calvert, governor of the province, carried out the wishes of his brother, that of William Lewis, the steward of Thomas Cornwallis, a Roman Catholic, can profitably be told here. Losing control of himself when two of his fellow servants read aloud from a volume of Smith's Sermons certain passages reflecting upon the

Pope and the Roman Catholic faith, Lewis made the assertion, it was alleged, that all Protestant ministers were "ministers of the devil." Governor Calvert with a Roman Catholic Court immediately fined him 500 pounds of tobacco and exacted a bond from him for good behavior lest he should "again offend the peace of the colony . . . by injudicious and unnecessary argument or disputation in matters of religion; . . . or use any ignominious words or speeches touching the books or ministers authorized by the State of England."¹

Following up these instructions to his brother Leonard, Cecilius Calvert issued in 1636 instructions for his future governors and also an oath of office which included the following:

"I will not by myself, or any other, directly or indirectly trouble, molest or discountenance any person professing to believe in Jesus Christ for or in respect of religion. I will make no difference of persons in conferring offices, favors or rewards for or in respect of religion, but merely as they shall be found faithful and well deserving and endued with moral virtue and abilities. My aim shall be public unity and that if any person or official shall molest any person professing to believe in Jesus Christ on account of his religion I will protect the person molested and punish the offender."²

This oath was the forerunner of the so-called "Toleration Act" passed by the Assembly twelve years later. Shortly after promulgation of the Governor's oath, the first building was erected, in 1642 for the Church of England worshippers in St. Mary's County—Trinity Church.¹ Without the formal induction of a minister, the congregation worshipped there without interference. Further up the Potomac River and some three or four miles across the St. Mary's, Poplar Hill (St. George's) Church was built about the same time. It was in this Church in 1650 that the first permanently settled Church of England clergyman, the Rev. William Wilkinson, began his thirteen years of ministry. Another church was built for the Protestants at St. Clement's Manor, about the same time as Trinity and Poplar Hill were. This church was built by Thomas Gerrard "for the convenience" of his Protestant wife, her friends and servants. In the building of these churches may be perceived the immediate results of Lord Baltimore's assurances of protection to the colonists in religious worship. Up to this time no other parts of the colony had attempted the building of a church. While it is true that no churches were built, it is known that there had been places of worship, however primitive they may have been, on Kent Island and in Kent County on the north side of Chester River about the year 1652. As proof of there being no Protestant minister in the colony at that time, a fine of five hundred pounds of tobacco upon a colonist was to be paid to the first Protestant minister "to arrive" in the colony.²

When Charles I³ was deposed, and opposition to the King which culminated later in the establishment of the Commonwealth under Cromwell developed, Lord Baltimore set about to solve the difficult problem of retaining possession of his colony. With characteristic shrewdness he concluded that the best way to do this was to change the "complexion" of the Council so that it would give to the Protestants a majority. Prior to this change (1648) the Assembly, it is said, had been composed almost entirely of Roman Catholic members. With this exhibition of willingness to satisfy the Protestants, he went further and appointed a Protestant Governor of the colony, William Stone. Feeling that his province was still in danger of confiscation, he urged in 1649 the passage by the Assembly of the "Act Concerning Religion"¹ which became known as the "Maryland Toleration Act." The preamble to the act is as follows:

"For as much as in a well governed Xtian Common Wealth matters concerning Religion and the honor of God ought in the first place to be taken into serious consideration and endeavored to be settled. Be it therefore ordered and enacted by the R^t Hon^{ble} Cecilius Lord Baron of Baltimore Absolute Lord and Proprietary of this Province, with the advice and consent of this General Assembly. . . ."

The first clause in the "Act" was as follows:

"That whatsoever person or persons within the Province and the Islands thereunto belonging shall from henceforth blaspheme God, that is Curse him or deny our Saviour Jesus Christ to bee the sonne of God, or shall deny the Holy Trinity the Father, sonne and holy Ghost, or the Godhead of any of the s^d Three Persons or the Trinity or the Unity of the Godhead or shall use or utter any reproachful Speeches, words or languages concerning the said Holy Trinity or any of the said Three persons thereof, shall be punished with death and confiscation or forfeiture of all his or her lands and goods to the Lord Proprietary and his heires."

The law further provided against the calling of names. The enumeration of these is interesting because the list apparently includes the names of some of the sects then within the Province—they are "Heretick, Scismatick, Idolator, Puritan, Independent, Prespiterian, Popish Priest, Jesuit, Jesuited Papist, Lutheran, Calvinist, Anabaptist, Brownist, Antinomian, Barrowist, Roundhead and Separatist." The Sabbath was not to be profaned. The last clause and most important of all was as follows:

"That no person or persons whatsoever within this Province, . . . , professing to believe in Jesus Christ, shall from henceforth bee any waies troubled, Molested or discountenanced for or in respect of his or her religion nor in the free exercise thereof within this Province or Islands thereunto belonging nor any way compelled to the believe or exercise of any other Religion against his or her consent, soe as they be not unfaithful to the Lord Proprietary, or molest or conspire against the civil Government established, or to be established, in this Province under him or his heires."¹

The passage of the "Toleration Act" was published in England and had its effect on the migration to the Province. Men of character and wealth were attracted to this delightful country of the New World. The numerous religious sects, finding full protection there in their religious worship, lived in harmony with their neighbors. Maryland, first of all the American colonies, had completed all the conditions that afforded to the World what it had for centuries longed for—

Religious Liberty. By persistently adhering to his original plan Cecilius Calvert had the satisfaction of realizing that his foresight was good in avoiding any condition that would compromise his ownership of the Province. How well he and his successors governed the Province nearly a half century is told by McMahon.¹ "Conspicuous above every other colony of that period, for its uniform regard of religious liberty, it had its reward. Harmony, peace and prosperity, were the general results; and this period in the history of Maryland, may be truly styled 'the golden age of its colonial existence.'"

From the beginning of the Province up to the Protestant Revolution in 1689 the missionary work of the Church of England was productive of very little result. The Church was interested in the missionary work in Virginia² but the work in Maryland was hampered by the provisions of Calvert's Charter. Cooperation between the Proprietary and the Church was practically impossible. Baltimore neglected to appoint ministers of the Church to "livings" in the Province. An effort was made in 1661 in the Lower House of the Provincial Assembly to provide a "mayntenance for ministers," but two days later, May 1st, 1661, upon the reading of the bill in the Upper House, "It was voted to be altogether insufficient and short of the thing aimed at."³ However this did not prevent the gradual growth of the Church and throughout the Province the faithful Churchmen held the regular services .

On Kent Island a church was built on Broad Creek about the year 1652. This was near where the Rev. Richard James had preached eighteen years earlier. Upon the death of the Rev. William Wilkinson in 1663, the Rev. Francis Sourton became rector of old Poplar Hill Church in St. Mary's County. At a church in Baltimore County on Bush River the Rev. John Yeo preached in 1683. In Calvert County the Rev. William Mullett held services in 1684. In 1682 in Anne Arundel County the Rev. Duell Pead baptized children. The Assembly at St. Mary's asked this same minister, in October, 1683 to preach to both the Upper and Lower Houses on October 14th, 1683, which he did and this interesting record of the proceedings of the Assembly of the 20th of October, 1683, gives an insight into the religious conditions that obtained at that time in the province. It is as follows:

"Upper House 20th October, 1683.

This house having taken into their serious consideration the great Care and Kindness of Our Sovereign Lord the King in giving in charge to the Right Reverend Father in God the Bishop of London to Supply this Place with able and Devout Ministers whereby the people may know their Duty to God and their Obedience to their Rulers do request the Lower House of this Assembly to Join with this House in giving thanks to M^r Duell Pead for his Learned Sermon preached before these two Houses the 14th Instant and that some Acceptable Present be given him for the same and this House is willing to concur with them therein.

Signed pr. Order Thos. Gounwin,
Clerk of Assembly."

The Lower House concurred on the 24th of October, 1683, and gave him a vote of thanks, only. The ministers whom we have just mentioned were among the earliest of the clergy to come to the province to engage in missionary work.

Before William of Orange ascended the throne, Lord Baltimore is said to have opposed the revolution in England¹ which conferred the crown on William. The enemies, in England, of Lord Baltimore induced the King to uphold the "rebellious" body of men in Maryland who had overthrown in 1689 the Proprietary's officials there. The work of the "associators" popularly described as the "Protestant Revolution" (1689) has been overfeatured as a factor in influencing the King to terminate the rule of the Calverts. It was a factor, but viewed from Whitehall, it was regarded more as an excuse than as a cause. The die had been cast.

On the 21st of August, 1690, proceedings were instituted at Whitehall, London, against the Charter of the Calverts in order to "vacate"² it and an address to the Colonists under date of the 12th of March, 1691, was sent to Maryland in which appears the following:

" . . . Wee have thought fitt to take our Province of Maryland under our immediate care and Protection and by letters Patents under the Great Seal of England to appoint our Trusty and well beloved Lionel Copley, Esq., of whose prudence and loyalty we are assured, to be our Governor thereof."³

This ended the rule of the Calverts as Roman Catholics, and not until 1715, after the accession of King George I, were the powers of government restored to them. The then Proprietary, Charles Calvert, infant son of Benedict Calvert, Lord Baltimore, had been educated in "the established religion of England and had thus become capable of holding governmental authorities subordinate to the Crown."⁴ He governed the province under the guidance of his guardian, Lord Guilford.

This also was the end of "Religious Liberty" which had been the principal "asset" of the Calverts and to which particular attention has been called.¹ "Religious Liberty," the child of expediency, was supplanted by no weakling when the king extended the jurisdiction of the Church of England to the Province of Maryland. Governor Copley's commission, dated February 14th, 1691, outlined the policy he was to pursue. The establishing of the Church of England by law was one of the first movements he was to set on foot. The right of induction of ministers was vested in him and upon close examination of his instructions it will be seen that he came to Maryland as the personal representative of both the Crown and the Church of England. Notice what this part of his instructions says:

" . . . and you are to enquire whether there be any minister within your Government who Preaches and Administers the Sacrament in any orthodox Church or Chappell without being in due Orders whereof you are to give an account to the said Bishop of London."²

At the meeting of the first Assembly, May, 1692, at the City of St. Mary's, after Governor Copley came, the first act passed was for the repealing of all previous laws. This done, the Assembly was presented with the draft of the Act entitled "An Act for the Service of Almighty God and the Establishment of the Protestant Religion within this Province." The provisions of this Act had been thoroughly discussed during the session, the first mention of the Act being found in the proceedings of May 16th, 1692. On June 2nd the House and Council both assented to the bill and on June 9th, Governor Copley invited all the members of both houses to witness his signature to this Act. The first provision of the Act read as follows:

“Be it therefore enacted by the King and Queens most Excellent Majestys by and with the advice and consent of this present General Assembly and the authority of the same That the Church of England within this Province shall have and enjoy all her Rights Liberties and Franchises wholly inviolable as is now or shall be hereafter Established by Law and also that the Great Charter of England be kept and observed in all points.”¹

Under the authority of this Act, the justices of each of the ten counties of Maryland were instructed to meet at their respective Court Houses, having previously given notice to the freeholders also to attend the meeting. With the advice of the freeholders the counties were to be divided into parishes. The vestrymen elected for each parish were to be of the freeholders, six in number, and the orthodox minister to be one of the vestry in his respective parish. Churches were to be built in each parish and a tax of forty pounds of tobacco was to be laid on the people of the province irrespective of creed for the maintenance of the minister. The provisions of this Act were carried out and the work of dividing the counties into parishes was completed in the following year, full reports of the work in each county being made to the Governor and Council by the County Clerks.

The “instructions” to Governor Copley, given him upon leaving England, included a command to “. . . take especial care that God Almighty be devoutly and duly served within your Government; the book of Common Prayer as it is now established read each Sunday and Holiday and the Blessed Sacrament administered according to the Rites of the Church of England. You shall take care that the churches already built there shall be well and orderly kept and more built as the Colony by God's Blessing be improved and that besides a competent maintenance be assigned to the minister of each church, a convenient house built at the common charge for each minister. You are not to prefer any minister to any Ecclesiastical Benefice in that Our Province without a certificate from the Right Reverend the Bishop of London of his being conformable to the doctrine and discipline of the Church of England and of a good life and conversation."¹

The reports to the Assembly in 1694 made by the Justices of the ten different counties of the Province showed that there were then thirty parishes, twenty-two churches and nine ministers.

Upon the death of Governor Copley,² Sir Francis Nicholson was sent out as Governor of the Province,³ and to him the work of building up the Church was a pleasure. He wrote to the Board of Trade and Plantation in March, 1697, as follows:—

“There was a law passed in the late Governor Copley's time for establishing the Church of England which his Majesty in Council was pleased to disapprove and disallow of &c; But there is another law now sent to your Lordships, and you may please to see by the Journals of the Assembly, what difficulties I met with about it. When I came hither I found very few of the Churches built, but I hope in God that they will be all finished this year, and then we shall want Clergymen, and a Commissary to inspect the Church affairs, for whose maintenance an Act is passed, and now sent to your Lordships. My Lord Bishop of London hath promised to send an able Commissary and some good Clergymen."¹

Governor Nicholson took the greatest interest in perfecting the Establishment and offered by way of an incentive "that if a way can be found out to build a house in every parish for the ministers, his Excellency (Nicholson) does propose to give five pounds sterling towards building every such house begun in his Excellency's time." His influence was the strongest help the Church of England had in Maryland at that time. The expenses of transportation of the ministers into the province was allowed them and in the year 1697, nine more clergymen came into the colony, making in all eighteen.²

The time had now arrived for a personal representative of the Bishop of London to take charge of the affairs of the Church. Dr. Thomas Bray was one of the greatest of the missionaries ever sent out from England and was noted for his godliness and great intelligence. Born 1656 at Marton, Shropshire, he was educated at Oxford. After serving as rector of Sheldon for a number of years (during these years he was devoting much of his time to collecting libraries for the use of the missionaries), he was sent to Maryland by Bishop Compton, then Lord Bishop of London, to settle the affairs of the infant Church.³ Doctor Bray left England on December 20th, 1699, and arrived in Maryland in March following. Going at once to Annapolis, he summoned the clergy to a "visitation," which was held in that city on May 23rd, 1700. There were present seventeen clergymen representing fifteen of the parishes. To these he delivered a charge and gave them instructions in their clerical work. This good man was able so to impress the importance of the Establishment upon both the clergy and the Assembly that the work received a great impetus.

After a short period (less than six months) of hard work in the Province in the interest of the Church, Doctor Bray returned to England to help in getting a law passed that would firmly establish the Church in Maryland. Those laws for the Establishment which the Assembly passed in 1692, 1696 and 1700 had defects which caused their "disallowance" by the King when they were presented in council at Whitehall. Doctor Bray, having had the intimate knowledge of the conditions in the Province as well as of the requirements necessary to have the law passed at the King's Council, advised the Assembly at Annapolis first to have the law framed by the Commissioners of Trade and Plantation in England and then to pass it as it came from them. Doctor Bray gave his personal attention to the law, and when the Assembly convened at Annapolis in March, 1702, Governor Nathaniel Blackistone instructed the members of the Assembly to "fill in the blanks and pass the bill without amendment." This was done! The Assembly adjourned on the 25th of March, 1702, having passed the "Act for the Establishment of Religious worship in this Province According to the Church of England and for the Maintainance of Ministers." By that act the Church in Maryland was governed, for over seventy years—until the outbreak of the Revolutionary War in 1775.

Earle of Carlisle

There was also prepared the draft of a letter to the Lords Proprietors of Carolina, the Lord Baltimore Proprietor of Maryland, Sir George Carteret Proprietor of New Jersey, and to the Bermudas Company, setting forth how that the plantation business (managed lately by a particular Councill) was now referred by his Majesty to a Committee of his Privy Councill, and that their Lordships might be enabled to inform his Majesty touching the condition of those Colonies. Their Lordships do send them some heads of Enquiry, upon which they are to return an accompt.”¹

“Their Lordships on the 10th of April sign a Circular letter wth severall Heads of Inquiry to the Lord Baltimore Lord Proprietary of Maryland.”²

And his maj^{ty} having more especially committed to a select number of the Board, whereof we are, the care and management of things relating to his Plantations, we have therefore thought it convenient to give your Lord^{sh} advirtism^t thereof. And because we do not as yet find ourselves enabled to give his Ma^{tie} such account of the State & Condition of that Colony as his Royall service & the dependence thereof upon the Crown does require. We have therefore thought fit to send your Ld^p (as we have done to others) some Heads of Inquiry here añext, the better to guide your Lordship in the method of that state and representation of things which we expect from your Lordship, and do desire it may be done with all convenient speed.

And soe not doubting of your Lordships care to advise us farther in all matters that may from time to time conduce to his ma^{ties} service, & our better discharge of the trust reposed in us.

We bid your Lordship very hearty farewell."

RELIGIOUS CONDITIONS IN THE PROVINCE OF MARYLAND 1676

Writing from the Patuxent river section of the Province under date of 25th May 1676, the Rev. John Yeo, a Church of England clergyman, labouring as a missionary in Maryland at that time, calls the attention of the Archbishop of Canterbury to the religious situation which confronted him. His letter is in part as follows:

“Most Reverend Father:

Please to Pardon this Presumption of Mine in presenting to your serious view these Rude & indigested lines wth (with humble submission) are to acquaint yo^r Grace with the Deplorable estate & condition of the Province of Maryland for want of an established Ministry, here are in this Province tenn or twelve County's & in them at least twenty thousand soules & but three Protestant ministers of us th^t are Conformable to the Doctrine & Discipline of the Church of England.”

He writes of those who pretend they are ministers and states that they are not qualified and

“for the most part such as never understood anything of learning & yet take upon themselves to be Dispensers of the Word & to administer Sacrament of Baptisme & sow seeds of Divission amongst the People & noe law Provided for the Suppression of such in this Province soe th^t here is a great necessitie of able & learned men to confute the gaine sayer especially having so many Profest enemies as the Popish Priests & Jesuits are, who are encouraged & Provided for & the Quaker takes care & provides for those that are Speakers in their Conventicles, but noe care is taken or Provision made for the building up Christians in the Protestant Religion by means whereof not only many Dayly fall away either to Popery, Quakerism or Phanaticisme but also the Lord's Day is prophaned, Religion despised, & all notorious vices committed soe th^t it is become a Sodom of uncleanness and a Pest house of iniquity.

I doubt not but yo^r Grace will take it into Consideration & do yo^r utmost for our Eternall welfare, & now is the time th^t yo^r Grace may be an instrument of a universal reformation amongst us with greatest facility. Cacillius Lord Barron Baltimore & Absolute Proprietor of Maryland being dead and Charles Lord Barron of Baltimore & our governor being bound for England this year (as I am Informed) to Receive a farther confirmation of that Province from his Majestie at wh^{ch} time I doubt but yo^r Grace may soe prevaile with him as th^t a maintenance for a Protestant ministry may be established as well in this Province as in Virginia, Barbadoes and all other his Majesties Plantations etc., etc.

The letter was received in due course by the Archbishop and being convinced of the earnestness of the appeal wrote to the Bishop of London as follows:

"Croydon,¹
August 2nd 1676.

My Lord:

The enclosed came lately unto me, and from a person altogether unknown. The design there in proposed, seem's very honest and is in itself so laudable that I conceive it concerns us by all means to promote it:

If your Lordship shall please to remember it, when the Lord Baltimores affaires comes to be considered of at the Councel Table, I make no question but there may be a convenient opportunity to obtain some settled revenue for the ministry of that place as well as the other plantations; when that is once done, it will be no difficult matter for us to supply them with such as are of competent abilities to undertake the employment and with all such as we know to be both regular and conformable.

I bid your Lordship heartily farewell and am
My Lord your Lordships

No action was taken upon the matter until the meeting of the Lords of Trade and Plantation on July 19, 1677² at which meeting Lord Baltimore appeared before the Board in person. “WHEREUPON THE LORD BALTIMORE PRESENTS
A PAPER SETTING FORTH THE PRESENT STATE OF RELIGION IN MARYLAND, VIZ^T

That for the encouragement of all such persons as were desirous and willing to adventure and transport themselves & families into the Province of Maryland a law there made by the advice and consent of the Delegates of the Freemen concerning Religion, wherein a toleration is given to all persons believing in Jesus Christ freely to exercise their Religion & that no person of what judgement soever, believing as aforesaid should at any time be molested or discountenanced for or in respect of his Religion or in the free exercise thereof and that noe one should be compelled to the believe or exercise of any other [Religion] against his consent. Upon this Act the greatest part of the people and Inhabitants now in Maryland have settled themselves & families there & for these many years this toleration & liberty has been known & continued in the Government of that Province.

That those persons of the Church of England there who at any time have encouraged any ministers to come over into that Province have had several sent unto them as at this time there are residing there foure that the L^d Baltimore knows of who have Plantations & settled beings of their owne and those that have not any such beings are maintained by a voluntary contribution of those of their own persuasion, as others of the Presbiterians, Independents, Anabaptists, Quakers & Romish Church are.

That in every Country [county?] in the Province of Maryland there are a sufficient number of Churches and

Houses called Meeting Houses for the people there and these have been built and are still kept in good repaire by a free and voluntary contribution of all such as frequent the said Churches and Meeting Houses. That the Laws of that Province have been ever made by the advice and consent of the Freemen by their Delegates assembled as well as by the Proprietor and his Council and without the consent of all these no law there has been made.

That the Laws of that Province have been ever made by the advice and consent of the Freemen by their Delegates assembled as well as by the Proprietor and his Council and without the consent of all these no Law there has been made.

The greatest part of the Inhabitants of that Province (three of four at least) doe consist of Presbiterians, Independents, Anabaptists and Quakers, those of the Church of England as well as those of the Romish being the fewest, so that it will be a most difficult task to draw such persons to consent unto a Law, which shall compel them to maintain ministers of a contrary persuasion to themselves, they having already an assurance by that Act for Religion that they have all freedom in point of Religion and Divine Worship and noe penalties or payments imposed upon them in that particular. That in Carolina, New Jersey and Roade Island, the Inhabitants for the peopling of those places have had and still have the same toleration that those in Maryland have."

After the submission of the foregoing paper by Lord Baltimore the minutes of the Lords of Trade and Plantation have the following entry:

"Whereupon their Lordships sign a letter to Lord Baltimore as follows:

Have received very credible information that many inhabitants of Maryland live very dissolute lives, committing notorious vices and prophaning the Lord's Day. Hope there are sufficient Laws to restrain and punish such evil lives and oblige men to live at least like Christians, though not of the same profession. If the laws be full enough desire his Lord^{sp} to have them put in execution, or, if defective to pass such laws as the occasion requires.

Have reason to believe this wicked kind of living proceed from there being no certain established allowance for ministers of the gospel, especially of the Protestant religion according to the Church of England, the cause of a great want of able ministers. Know how necessary it is to have this want supplied without imposing any burthen upon the inhabitants that they are willing freely to settle, therefore desire his Lord^{sp} to write to the Governor and Council of Maryland to send over an account of the number of Protestant ministers of the Church of England and their allowances, also of the number of Protestant families and the value of their Plantations and how many congregations they make up; also to inquire what each congregation will freely settle for the maintenance of an able minister which, when agreed upon, to be enacted into a law as in His Majesty's other Plantations.

Would likewise be glad to have account of the number of ministers or teachers of dissenters and their allowances, and of the number of the planters, their persuasions, and the number of each persuasion."¹

Lord Baltimore's answers to the "Quiries" which appear on page 24, and to the above letter are set forth in part as follows:

ANSWER OF LORD BALTIMORE TO THE QUERIES ABOUT MARYLAND PROPOUNDED BY COMMISSIONERS OF TRADE AND PLANTATION

26th March 1678

“Answer to No. 11—*Trade Building and No. 12—Parishes.*¹

The people there [Maryland] not affecting to build nere each other but soe as to have their houses nere the water for convenience of trade and their lands on each side of and behind their houses by which it happens that in most places there are not fifty houses in the space of thirty miles. And for this reason it is that they have been hitherto only able to divide the Province into Counties without being able to make any subdivisions into Parishes or precincts which is a work not to be effected until it shall please God to increase the number of the people and so to alter their trade as to make it necessary to build more close and to live in towns.”²

“Answer to No. 18.—*Christenings; to No. 19.—Marriages; to No. 20,—Burials; to No. 26.—Religion and to No. 27 Churches.*³

Secondly—That having as yet no further divisions of the said Province than into Counties, nor in truth any possibility of making as yet any further subdivisions into Parishes for the reasons before given, there is no way to be found to make calculations to satisfy these inquiries without taking a very great time and making such scrutinies as would certainly either endanger insurrections or a general dispeopling of the Province which is at present in great peace and quiet, all persons there being secured to their content for quiet enjoyment of everything that they can reasonably desire.

² Arch. Md., Vol. 5, p. 266.

The reasons why such scrutinies would be thus dangerous is that viz^t That at the first planting of the Province by my father albeit he had an absolute liberty given to him and his heirs to carry thither any persons of any of the Dominions that belonged to the Crown of England who should be found willing to go thither; yet when he came to make use of this liberty he found very few who were included to go and seat themselves in those parts but such as for some reason or other could not live with ease in other places. And of these a great part were such as could not conform in all particulars to the several laws of England relating to Religion.

Many there were of this sort of people who declared their willingness to go and plant themselves in this Province so as they might have a General Toleration settled there by a law by which all of all sorts who professed Christianity in general might be at liberty to worship God in such manner as was most agreeable with their respective judgments and consciences without being subject to any penalties whatsoever for their so doing provided the civil peace were preserved. And that for the securing the civil peace and preventing all heats feuds which were generally observed to happen amongst such as differ in opinions upon occasion of reproachful nicknames and reflecting upon each others opinions it might by the same law be made penal to give any offence in that kind, these were the conditions proposed by such as were willing to go and be the first planters of the Province. And without the complying with these conditions in all probability this Province had never been planted.

To these conditions my father agreed and accordingly soon after the first planting of this Province these conditions by the unanimous consent of all who were concerned were passed into a law and the inhabitants of this Province have found such effects from this law and from the strict observance of it, as well in relation to their quiet as in relation to the farther peopling of the Province that they look on it as that whereon alone depends the preservation of their peace, their properties and their liberties.

This being the true state of the case of this Province it is easy to judge what consequences might ensue upon any scrutinies which should be made in order to the satisfying these particular inquiries."¹

On May 14th, 1692, Mr. Huett and the Rev. Mr. Huett was rector of Stepney Church and of Old Monie in Somerset.

The cause for dismissal of Col. St. Leger Codd' and Mr. George Warner of Cecil was found by the Committee in the fact that they "called Cecil County Court [in April, 1690] and held the same in the name of the Lord Baltimore, denying the Authority of the Late Convention, etc."³

The bill received its second reading in the Council on the 27th of May and was sent to the Assembly. The Lower House adding the following:

“Signify the opinion of the House thereupon that it may not commence nor take force till March next.”²

The same day it also received a reading in the Lower House brought from the Council. The following is an extract upon the records:

“An Act for the Service, etc., ordered to be read, upon which was reassumed a former Vote concerning the Settlement of an Annuall Income in each parish upon the Ministry within the Province and Voted whether it should be done by the Assessment^t of Forty or 20 ^{lbs} of tob^o. p. poll, and Carried by the Majority of Voices to be assessed by a Taxe of Forty pounds of Tobacco p. poll upon the Taxeables of each parish.”³

SHERIFF'S JURISDICTION.

“At a Council held at Port of Annapolis.
March 3^d 1695.

The Question :

Ordered that it be referred to M^r Attorney & Solicitor Generall whether the Sherriffs now at present Officiating & Acting in the late divided Counties can legally continue to Act in their several places, in the Counties as (by the late Law) they stand now divided, and whether the Commissions of the peace &c^a ought not to issue, and that they make Report of their opinion therein unto this Board with all speed; who make the following Return viz^t

The Opinion :

We humbly conceive that after the day in the Act of Assembly mentioned for dividing the Counties, the Sheriff of each County is not to Act beyond the limits of the County in the Act mentioned, and for prevention of inconyeniency and for the better administering Justice, it would be requisite that the Commission to All Officers Judiciall & Ministeriall should be made to take Effect at that time, in the new Erected County.

(Signed) Geo: Plater [Attorney General]

(Signed) Wm. Dent¹ [Solicitor General]

¹ Arch. Md., Vol. 20, p. 380. This opinion is quoted here to impress upon the reader the fact that the boundaries of parishes and counties were official and that the map (in back of book) of the province showing those boundaries is based upon that opinion. In other words the parish boundaries were made co-extensive with the country boundaries.

THE LAW UNDER WHICH THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND FUNCTIONED UNTIL
THE REVOLUTION IN 1775

Papers Relating to the Validity of the Law and the Act Providing for the Disposition of the Taxes

“AN ACT FOR THE ESTABLISHM^T OF RELIGIOUS WORSH^{PP} IN THIS PROVINCE ACCORDING TO THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND: AND FOR THE MAINTAINANCE OF MINISTERS.”¹

Act of Assembly—March 25th 1702.

The defects of the previous similar bills framed by the Assembly had caused their rejection and upon the advice of Dr. Thomas Bray, who had fathered the Act of April 26th, 1700, and who had appeared personally in London before the Board of Trade and failed to get it passed; the Assembly asked the Commissioners of Trade and Plantation to prepare a bill that would be allowed by the Crown indicating their willingness to pass such as an Act of the Assembly of Maryland.

The defect in the Act of 1700 was the clause, “Bee it Enacted by the Authority aforesaid that the booke of Common Prayer and Admistration of the Sacraments with other Rites and Ceremonys of the Church According to the use of the Church of England the Psalter or Psalms of David and Morning and Evening Prayer therein contained be Solemnly read by all and Every Minister or Reader in Every Church or other Place of Public Worship within this Province.”²

² Arch. Md., Vol. 24, p. 91. For statement of Council in regard to restrictions see Letter to Commissioners of Trade and Plantation, page 166.

This deprived the Quakers and other dissenters of the benefits of toleration they had enjoyed. Upon receiving a letter from the "Right Hon^{ble} the Lords of Plantation and Trade" notifying him of the failure to pass the Act of 1700, Governor Nathaniel Blackiston addressed the Council and Lower House in joint session on the 16th of March, 1702. He said in part:

"The Law for Establishing religious worship in this Province according to the Church of England which you made last & sent home is now returned by his Majesty for your Assent. You'll find the Alterations, that are made but very little, and that such Visible Amendments to our Advantage being corrected by so wise an Hand. We ought to be proud of the pattern in confirming it. If I mistake not your Journalls of Assembly will make it appear that this Way was humbly requested by yourselves in an Address to his Majesty that he would be pleased to order it to be drawn as he should judge fit and it be remitted to you for your Concurrence and therefore since this Law was so unanimously made by you I have not the least doubt that any crafty Inclinations will abate your good Intentions in confirming so glorious and good an Act; But that you will cheerfully Join in putting it on foot His Majesty has been graciously pleased to give us an handle so to do. That for the future it may not be within the reach of our opponents to shock it again, tho their Efforts have proved feeble hitherto yet you ought not to trust any longer, but Endeavour to plant it firm to your Posterity which will be a most lasting Testimonie of your virtues."¹

On Tuesday, March 17th, 1702, the Governor sent the bill to the Lower House "for your Consideration, and your Concurrence and Resolutions thereon are desired with as much speed as conveniently may be."¹ Owing to the absence of several of the members of the Lower House, no action was taken until the 20th of March, at which time a full attendance of the members allowed the Assembly to proceed with its consideration. The Council records show that on the 20th "Came Major Dent and M^r [Edward] Lloyd from the House to desire a Conference of Some Members of their House with some Members of the Council upon the Bill proposed for Establishment of religious Worship within this Province, which Conference was readily granted when the House shall think fitt. Col. Addison, Col. Courts, M^r Brooke and Col. Hammond appointed to conferr with the members assigned by the House."

After the conference at the morning session, the bill was read the first time. A vote was then taken as to whether it should pass as it came from England. "Carryed in the affirmative and ordered that the blanks be filled up and it be th^s endorsed, Resolved that it pass without any amendment and ordered to be read ag^{ne} this afternoone."² It was read the second time in the Lower House and passed; it also received two readings and was "agreed to" by the Council at the same session and then sent up to the Committee to be engrossed.

At the Council meeting on Monday morning, March 23rd, 1702, the Governor read a part of a letter written to him by Dr. Thos. Bray, under date of July 15th, 1701. Doctor Bray called attention to the work he had done in England for the "Law of Religion" and says "My own Time and Pains in this affaire I willingly make an offering of together with what other Services have been done the Country." He then states that he expected to be reimbursed for the outlay of cash (upwards of £50) paid out in soliciting the passage of the bill before the Board of Trade in England. A vote of thanks was tendered Doctor Bray by the Upper and Lower Houses and an order drawn to reimburse him for that which he had "disbursed in negotiating the said affair about the Act for Religious Worship."¹

At the Afternoon session on March 23rd, the bill received its third reading in the Council and sent to the Lower House by Col. Addison and Mr. Brooke, where it received its final reading and approval.

BASIS OF CLAIM THAT THIS ACT WAS VOID

“The following facts may be premised as the case—King William deceased on the 8th of March 1701/2; the assembly, which was therefore called in the usual manner met on the 16th of the same month, and during its sitting passed the Act in question, without the possibility of knowing, that such an event had taken place. Governor Seymour the successor of Governor Blackistone, who summoned the assembly upon his arrival, on the 11th of April, 1704, found the same assembly existing, that had been called, by his predecessor, in the name of King William; so that there were three several secessions of assembly held, after the demise of King William, to wit, in June 1702, in October 1703, and in April 1704.”¹

“The Act of 1701/2 under which the claim was preferred was passed by a House of Delegates chosen under writs of election issued the name of King William, the Government [of Maryland] being then in the hands of the Crown. A few days after the decease of this King and without any fresh writs of election or summons, the Assembly was convened and the Act in question was passed. It was now [1772] contended that by the death of the king that Assembly was dissolved; and that this Act being passed thereafter, was absolutely void, and not susceptible of confirmation by subsequent acts merely presuming its existence.

The opinions of Mr. Hollyday and Mr. Dulany, sustaining the validity of the Act; and those of Mr. Paca and Mr. Chase in opposition to it, have been preserved and are remarkable for their ingenious views and profound investigations.”²

The American Revolution settled the controversy over the validity of the Act of 1702 before it reached the courts.

COUNTIES, PARISHES, HUNDREDS, CHURCHES
VESTRYMEN AND MINISTERS, ETC.

PARISHES

"In England the parish may be regarded as essentially an Ecclesiastical institution being defined as the township or cluster of towns which was assigned to the ministration of a single priest, etc.

The beginnings of the parochial system are attributed to Theodore of Tarsus who was Archbishop of Canterbury toward the close of the seventh century The two systems, the parish and the township, have existed for more than a thousand years side by side, identical in area and administered by the same persons and yet separate in character and machinery.

The boundaries of the old ecclesiastical parishes are usually identical with those of the township or townships comprised within its precinct many parishes contain more than one township."¹

HUNDREDS

The work of dividing the counties into parishes by the Justices and Freeholders showed that they followed the lines of the hundreds or districts of the counties. According to Webster's Dictionary a "hundred" is a division of a county supposed to contain a hundred families.

"The origin of these divisions (lathe, soke, tithing, hundreds, etc.) is generally ascribed to the creative genius of Alfred [The Great, 849-901] who, according to the popular theory, divided the country into counties, the county into hundreds, and the hundreds into tithings, or towns."²

PROPOSED SEAL FOR THE COUNTIES OF THE PROVINCE OF MARYLAND

Authorized 1692. Arch. Md., Vol. 13, f. 290 and Vol. 8, f. 383. It is not now known that any of these seals were made.

COUNTIES OF MARYLAND—1692¹

The Provincial Assembly resolved after debate that the members from the Counties take "precedency"² as follows:

"City of St Maryes

- | | |
|---------------------|---------------------|
| 1. St Maryes County | 6. Baltimore County |
| 2. Kent " | 7. Talbott " |
| 3. Ann Arundall " | 8. Sumersett " |
| 4. Calvart " | 9. Dorchester " |
| 5. Charles " | 10. Cecil " " |

There were protests made against this order by the residents of Kent County. They wanted to be recognized as the oldest county of the Province. Among other protests one was presented to the Assembly on Oct. 15th, 1695, and Mr. Matthew Erexon (Eareckson), an inhabitant of the "Isle of Kent" was allowed to speak on its merits.³ The official recognition of this petition and the ruling of the Council appears as follows:

"Council Chamber May 2^d 1696⁴

Kent Island petition produced and Ordered sent down [to the Lower House] with the following endorsement, viz^t—

By His Excell^{ncy} the Gov^{nr} and Council &c. Upon reading the within Petition it was Ordered that the same be sent down but with this note that His Excell^{cy} will in no wise Assent to any Alteration contrary to the late Act and that whereas it is insisted upon that they [the Inhabitants of the Isle of Kent] are the most antient County, it is Observed that the first People that Inhabited the same did not acknowledge themselves Belonging to this Province and therefore are not the most antient County."

¹ The arrangement of the counties is in accordance with the date of their erection. Under this plan the parishes are given numbers in accordance with those of the county in which they were erected.

I have not been able to find a record of St. Andrew's Parish having been laid out in 1692 though the Fulham papers are said to mention it as one of the original parishes of the Province of Maryland. In 1744 a St. Andrew's Parish was erected in St. Mary's County. It would seem probable that it would have been erected in Cecil County had all of the territory of that County been taken into consideration. North Sassafras Parish, in Cecil County, apparently did not cover all of the part of the county which lay north of the Sassafras River at that time, 1692.

ST. MARY'S COUNTY

Named in honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the landing in St. Mary's of the Colonists having been made on the Feast of the Annunciation, March 25th, 1634.

ST. MARY'S COUNTY (erected 1637) bounds began at Point Lookout thence with the Potomac river No. 1 to the southern boundary of Charles County, then in an easterly direction to a line paralleling the "Three Notched Road," then the line ran to Pyne Hill creek or river, then down this creek to the Chesapeake bay and thence to the place of beginning. It will be observed that St. Mary's county did not extend to the Patuxent river; the "Three Notched Road" practically divided it from Calvert county on the north.

Shortly after the "Establishment" the lines were changed (1695), and are described in the Assembly records¹ as follows: "St. Mary's county Bounds begin on the lower side of Birds [now Budd's] creek on the Potomock river and so runne to the lower side of Indian creek on Potuxent river—, and that the divisions be straight lines from the heads of the said creekes."

"It was by the Justices and Freeholders of the said county—met at New Town the day and year above said—5th day of September 1692."

IN THE REPORT to the Assembly in 1694, July 30th, we find the following:—

"SAINT MARIES COUNTY is divided into two parishes which both contain about One thousand Tythables.
 1 Church built at S^t Georges.
 1 Church to be built near Cap^t Cood's.
 No minister inducted.

KING AND QUEEN PARISH extended from St. Clements bay and river to the extreme end of St. Mary's county as then defined and which embraced within its limits the territory known as Newport Hundred, now part of Charles County.

Its boundaries were St. Clements bay and "run" [then known as "Mr. Langworth's Branch"], the Calvert County line [near the "Three Notched Road"] to the upper extremity of Newport Hundred, thence to the headwaters of Wicomico river [now Zachia's swamp] and with the Wicomico river and the Potomac river to the beginning.

THE FIRST CHURCH was probably "Newport Church" then located west of the center of the parish near Newport. The Episcopal Church of St. Clements manor on St. Pauls' creek, erected in 1642, was the third Protestant church built by the Colonists. KENT COUNTY Named for the English county of Kent.

KENT COUNTY'S (erected 1642) boundaries went through many changes prior to the "Establishment" No. 2 and it may prove of interest to state here the most important ones.

The Isle of Kent had once comprised the whole of the Eastern Shore of the Province north of the Choptank river and in his "History of Maryland" McMahon says "The subdivision called the Isle of Kent being in its origin, as was St. Mary's, the name of an undefined settlement, the County of Kent received its definite limits from the erection of other counties around it."¹

The County of Kent comprised at successive times parts of Baltimore and Cecil counties and received its present limits or bounds in 1706. The boundaries in 1692 of Kent county comprised the whole of Kent Island and that portion of the present county that lies south of a line that ran from "Buck Neck," at the head of Worton creek, to some point on Morgan's creek.

The land records of Baltimore county prior to the erection (in 1674) of Cecil county indicate that the southern bounds of Baltimore county were as stated in the above paragraph.

Kent's boundaries became confused by the proclamation erecting Cecil county, and protests from the inhabitants of the lower part of Kent county brought forth another proclamation as follows: "Forasmuch as by a late Proclamation bearing date the sixth day of this instant June some Additions were made to several counties upon the division of that of Baltimore County and by the proclamation it was then declared that Swan Point downe to Hell point on

EMMANUEL

CHESTERTOWN, KENT COUNTY

It was upon the site of this church that stood the one in which it was moved and adopted, by the Convention in 1780 that the Church of England as heretofore so known in the Province of Maryland be now called the Protestant Episcopal Church. This was the initial adoption of the name, the other dioceses following in close order. A Chapel of Ease of St. Paul's Parish in Kent County was built in Chestertown prior to 1709 and in 1721 a more substantial edifice replaced the old wooden one. In 1765 Chester Parish was laid out and then the Chapel of Ease at Chestertown became the Chapel of Ease of Chester Parish, the parish Church being built at the Cross Roads called L. U. In 1770 the Chapel of Ease at Chestertown was replaced by a substantial building which in 1809 became and remained to this day the parish church of Chester Parish.

BROAD CREEK CHURCH was erected on Kent Island in 1652 according to the various authorities who have written of this island parish. The old site is at the head of Broad creek and it is said that the water in the creek was deep enough at the time the church was built to allow boats to land at its doors. It is near the place supposed to have been selected by Cleyborn for the holding of divine services when “he brought the Rev. Mr. Richard James to the Island in 1631.”⁴

STEVENSVILLE, KENT ISLAND

This is the successor of the church that was built on Broad Creek about 1652, the ruins of which are about one mile south of Stevensville. Twenty-one years prior to the building of the old church the Reverend Richard James had preached to the settlers on the "Isle of Kent."

ST. PAUL, BUILT 1713

ST. PAUL'S PARISH, KENT COUNTY

This old church enjoys the distinction of being the oldest building in Maryland which has been in use as a place of worship continuously. It is the third church built within the present bounds of St. Paul's Parish. The first one was called St. Peter's and built on Church Creek, about 1652.

ST. PAUL'S PARISH "consists of the rest of the County."¹

No. 4 The Chesapeake bay from Worton creek south to the Chester river bounded the parish on the west, the Chester river also bounded it on the south and east. The northern line ran from Morgan's creek, a branch of the Chester river, to the head waters of Churn creek.²

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH is the parish church and stands at the head of Dunn's creek, the Northwest branch of Langford's bay, amid a grove of giant oaks. The church was completed in 1713.

THE REV. STEPHEN BORDLEY was sent in 1697 to the parish to take up the work that had been begun by the Rev. Mr. Lawrence Vanderbush, the first minister. Mr. Vanderbush went to St. Paul's in September, 1693 and not only preached in this parish but also held services in South Sassafras or Shrewsbury parish. This latter parish was then within the bounds of Cecil county. The Rev. Stephen Bordley incumbent 1696.³

By an Act of the Assembly, passed April 4th, 1697, the division line between this and Shrewsbury parish was determined and a commission appointed to run the line and make a report to the Assembly. The bounds of St. Paul's parish were changed but little when the line was finally run in 1698; the commission finished its work that year. The following is a partial copy of the Act: "That from and after the tenth of June 1698 all that land and inhabitants in Chester river above the riding over of a branch of Morgan's Creek on the east side of William Bate-man's house and on the north side of a line drawn from the riding over of the sd branch to the head of a branch of a Creek issueing out of the Bay called Churn Creek, be Always taken and reputed and be in Shrewsbury parish and All the land on the South side of the sd Churn Creek and Branch and Division line down the Bay to the extent of CECIL COUNTY be added to St. Paul's parish in KENT COUNTY on the North side of Chester River and Always to be Reputed in St. Paul's Parish any Law, Custom or Usage to the contrary Notwithstanding."

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY

Named for Lady Anne Arundel, the wife of Cecilius Calvert, second Lord Baltimore.

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY'S (erected 1650) southern boundary was a "line from Herring Creek to
No. 3 the head of Patuxant River."¹

The Chesapeake bay was the eastern boundary and according to the Act of Assembly of 1722, Chap. No. 3, the division between Westminster parish in Anne Arundel and the parish of St. Paul's in Baltimore county apparently ran from the Chesapeake bay at a point about equidistant from the Magothy river and the mouth of Bodkin creek to about where the present village of Elkridge is situated. This line followed the ridge between the Patapsco and Magothy rivers. How long this line had served to divide the two parishes is not known.

The following official record shows that part of Anne Arundel belonged to Baltimore county in 1694:

"Petition of the Inhabitants Situated upon the South Side of the Patapsco River praying that they may be Rejoyned to the County of Ann Arrundell as formerly they were. Which being Read, Ordered that the said peticōn be sent to the house of Assembly for their considercōn."²

"By the Assembly, Oct., 3rd 1694.

The within Petition Read & Considered, Voted whether the South Side of Patapsco River be added to the County of Ann Arrundell or Remaine still as it is. Carried by Majority of votes to Remaine as it is."³

THE PARISHES in Anne Arundel county were divided by the rivers that emptied into the Chesapeake with the exception of Broad Neck, or Westminster, parish on its northern side. This parish was divided from St. Paul's parish in Baltimore county as described on page 138 of this book. Their western boundaries being the line run north from the branch of Mattawoman creek to the northern limits of the Province, as called for in naming the bounds of Piscataway parish in Charles county.⁴

It was the church of the original Herring Creek Parish. "The vestry set about building a new edifice, the contract for which was given out in 1695."⁵

THE FIRST RECTOR of the parish was the Rev. Henry Hall. He served from 1695 until his death in 1721. He was regularly inducted May 7th 1698. Joseph Tilley was lay reader in 1696 and 1697.⁶

CALVERT COUNTY

Named for the Calvert Family.

CALVERT COUNTY (erected 1650) in 1692 was divided from Anne Arundel County "by a line from
No. 4 Herring Creek to the head of the Patuxent."¹

On the east the county was bounded by the Cheapeake bay. On the south and west by Pyne Hill creek, then paralleling the Three Notched Road and then on through the woods to the "head of the Patuxent." Calvert County in 1692 comprised parts of the present counties of St. Marys, Charles, Prince Georges and Anne Arundel.

"At that time the Governor decided to—'Erect make and appoint both sides of the Putuxent river into one County by the name of CALVERT COUNTY bounded on the Southside with Pynehill River or Creek to the head thereof and from thence through the woods to the head of Putuxent River being the Northerly bound of St. Maries County and bounded on the North Side with the Creek upon the Western Side of Chesapeake Bay called the Herring Creeke and from thence through the woods to the head of Putuxent River being the Southerly bound of Anne Arundel County'."²

The two parishes of St. Paul's and All Faiths which were within the bounds of the old county were laid out on the west side of the Patuxent river.

CHARLES COUNTY

Named for Charles Calvert, Third Lord Baltimore

CHARLES COUNTY (erected 1658) in 1692 was bounded on the south and west by St. Mary's county No. 5 and the Potomac river, on the east by Calvert county and the north by the Maryland-Pennsylvania line. This may be more fully described by quoting from Thomas' Chronicles of Colonial Maryland: "Charles County bounds, the river Wicomico to its head and from the mouth of that River up the Potomac as high as the settlements extend and thence to the head of Wicomico." In describing the bounds of Piscataway Parish, the northernmost of the Charles county parishes, Dr. Allen gives practically all of the rest of the Province (not already covered by the other nine counties) to this county thereby making it nearly equal in area to all the other counties combined.

"CHARLES COUNTY is divided into Seven hundreds, viz^t

Lower part of William & Mary Parish	Hundred.
Upper " " " " " "	"
East Side of Portobacco	"
West " " "	"
Lower part of Nanjemy Parish	"
Upper " " " "	"

This church was destroyed by fire in 1921. It was built at the time the Rev. Alexander Williamson was rector and succeeded one built prior to 1726 at which time Prince George's Parish was laid out, Prince George's Parish being the first division of Piscattoway or St. John's Parish. Piscattoway Parish embraced all of Western Maryland including the territory now within the District of Columbia. The National Capitol and the National Cathedral are standing now in what was Piscattoway Parish.

Creek, built in 1719, became the parish church of Prince George's parish. In 1742 the Assembly was again petitioned further to divide the territory originally covered by Piscattaway Parish, and Chapter 18 of that Session erected "All Saints Parish" with the parish church at Frederick.¹

THE FIRST RECTOR of Piscattaway Parish was the Rev. George Tubman who began his work August 4th, 1696. He was also rector of Portobacco, William and Mary and Nanjemy Parishes at the same time. He died in 1701.²

ST. PAUL'S PARISH, BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE COUNTY

Named for the Lord Baltimore's Irish Barony.

BALTIMORE COUNTY (erected 1659) in 1692 was bounded on the east by the Susquehanna river. The Chesapeake bay was one of its boundaries. For its southern boundary, we quote proclamation of June 6th, 1674, "the southern boundary of Baltimore county shall be the south side of Potapsco River, and from the highest plantation on that side of the river due south two miles into the woods."¹

This "two miles into the woods" means that a two mile strip of country on the south side of the Patapsco river was taken from Anne Arundel county by this "proclamation" for we find in the "Upper House Journal" under date of April 23, 1684 "A Petition of the Inhabitants scituate upon the southside of Patapsco River and others holding land there desireing to bee restored into the County of Ann Arundell from whence at first they were taken into Baltimore County by reason of their greate distance from and incommodious wayes of going to the County Court of Baltimore & Ca. Read and rejected,— This House Considering that Baltimore County being already very small and for other motives the same remaine as now it is."²

The present southern boundary of Baltimore county was made by Act of Assembly 1722, Chap. 3, and the former lines recited in the Act prove that the division line between the two counties, Baltimore and Anne Arundel, began upon the shore of the Chesapeake bay about a mile and a quarter south of Bodkin Point and paralleled the course of the Patapsco at a distance of about two miles, running northwest along the ridge between the Magothy and the Patapsco rivers.

The western boundary¹ of the county was the line that bounded Piscattaway parish (Charles county) on the east—this line ran north from the head of Mattawoman creek to the boundary line of the Province.

THE FIRST COURT HOUSE of Baltimore county was built on Bush river, now Harford county, and it is generally supposed it was there that the Court met until 1712 when by Act of Assembly the Court House was built in Joppa, also now in Harford county. In 1768 the Court House was abandoned and the county seat removed to Baltimore city.²

Parish Church of St. Thomas' Parish laid out in 1742; the first division of St. Paul's Parish, Baltimore. This church succeeded a chapel of ease built prior to 1740.

In accordance with the directions of this Act of the Assembly, (1692, Ch. 2) the Justices of Baltimore County at a Court held Nov. 1692 made the following order:—"That one Parish be in Specutia Hundred, and another in Gunpowder River (that is to say) from Gunpowder River to the head of Middle River And [another] from Middle River as far as the County goes or extends."¹

June 27, 1702.

"According to his Excellency the Governour's order and summons appeared the Vestry of St. Paul's Parish on Patapsco River in Baltimore County and it being required of them to produce their Accounts how the 40 lb. p poll raised in that Parish has been disposed of M^r Richard Cromwell alledges for that the Sheriff of the County Lieut. “PATAPSCO (or St. Paul’s) PARISH. The bounds of this parish were as follows:—On the east by No. 17 Middle river, on the south by the Chesapeake bay, on the west by the county of Anne Arundel and the eastern boundry line of Piscattaway parish,¹ one of the parishes of Charles County. It was bounded on the north by the boundry line of the province.

“THE VESTRY, September 1693, was as follows:—

THE FIRST CHURCH built, 1702, in this parish stood at the head of “Cloppers,” now Colgate creek. “We the Vestrie men for Patapsco Hundred met together at the house of Major John Thomas [resolved] that at Pettites Old Field was the most convenient place for to erect a Church.”³

The present parish church stands on the corner of Charles and Saratoga Streets in the City of Baltimore. The first church built on this site was erected in 1730.

THE REV. EDWARD TOPP, JR. was the incumbent of this parish in 1696.⁴ According to the Allen Manuscript the first rector of the parish was the Rev. Edward Topp, Jr. He served from 1698 to 1702.

ST. THOMAS’ PARISH was the first subdivision of St. Paul’s Parish. It was erected by authority of an Act of the Provincial Assembly in 1742, Chapter 15.⁵

ST. JOHN, BUILT 1815

KINGSVILLE, BALTIMORE COUNTY

Old Parish Church of Copley or St. John's Parish. The first church of this parish was built at Joppa, once county seat of Baltimore County.

ST. JOHN'S PARISH ("alias Copley Parish"), Dr. Allen says, contained the two hundreds of Gun-
 No. 18 powder and Southern Gunpowder, bounded, according to the best records obtainable, by the Bush river on the east, the Chesapeake bay on the South, Middle river on the west and the northern line of the Province on the north.

Dr. Allen's Ms. gives the following as vestrymen in June 1693.

"THE CHURCH to be on Elk Neck on Gunpowder River."² St. Johns Church was built later at the former county seat of Baltimore county, Joppa, but the present parish church is at Kingsville, built in 1817.

IT IS KNOWN THAT the famous Rev. John Yeo, who died in 1686, lived in the territory which was included in 1692 in the parish bounds. The earliest record of a minister after the Establishment is that of the Rev. John Edwards, 1710.

ST. JAMES PARISH was erected in 1770, the chapel of ease of St. John's Parish becoming the parish church.

THE FIRST CHURCH in this part of the Province was called “Spesutia Church” built in 1671.² This present church is now called St. George's and is near the village of Perryman, Harford county.

THE REV. JEREMIAH EATON was the first Protestant minister in Baltimore county (west of the Chesapeake bay) and he owned land (1675) near Bush river. In 1683 the Rev. John Yeo preached in that part of Baltimore county afterwards laid out into St. George's Parish. He settled at New Castle, Delaware, June 4, 1678, and was the first Episcopal minister in that State. TALBOT COUNTY Named for Grace Talbot, daughter of George Calvert, first Lord Baltimore.

TALBOT COUNTY (erected 1662) in 1692 extended from the head of Chester river down to the Chop-tank river. The western bounds were the Chester river, the "Narrows," Eastern bay and the Chesapeake.

While the eastern boundaries were identical with those of the Province there were very few colonists who lived far from the water courses, hence the eastern limits were not sharply defined.

REPORT to the Assembly

June 30, 1694. "They can Give noe certain Returne as yet for Talbot County."¹

At a court held at Yorke, June 20th, 1693, there were appointed by the court the vestrymen for the three parishes of the County.²

THE FIRST COURT HOUSE was on Skipton creek, a branch of the Wye river, at "Hopton."³

" . . . at the time of laying out the parishes, in 1693, the Court House was on a branch of Wye river where is the dwelling plantation of Mr. Wm. Hemsley Jun^r which by many is still called the old Court House."⁴

"In 1680 a Court House was built upon land purchased of Jonathan Hopkin which was located on Skipton creek near the headwaters of the Wye river. In this building court was held for the first time in 1682 or 1683. Later a 'prison' was built. Around these two buildings there grew up quite a village which was called, by Act of Assembly of 1686, "Yorke" evidently in honor of the ancient town in England of the same name."⁵

OLD WYE, BUILT 1717-1721
WYE MILLS, TALBOT COUNTY

This was a Chapel of Ease of St. Paul's Parish, Talbot County (after 1766 Queen Anne's County) until 1860, at which time it became the parish church of Wye Parish.

ST. PAUL, BUILT 1834

CENTERVILLE, QUEEN ANNE'S COUNTY

The first church of St. Paul's Parish was of wood construction and stood about a mile southwest of where Centerville is, at a place called "Hibernia." In 1008 this building was replaced by a brick structure and called "Chester" church. In 1705 Chester Church was in such bad condition that the vestry decided to rebuild it following the plans of St. Paul's Church in Philadelphia. This later building was torn down and some of the bricks, for sentimental reasons, were used in making the walls of the present parish church.

“ST PAUL’S PARISH begins at the head of Chester River & Extends to the Court House¹ and from the No. 20 Court House along the north side of Brewers’ Branch [now Skipton creek] to the Head of s^d branch and from thence to Judwin’s branch being the North part of Tuccohoe Hundred.”²

M^r William Finney
 M^r William Coursey
 M^r John Whittington
 M^r Nathaniel Wright
 M^r Robert Macklin
 M^r John Chairs.”³

THE CHURCH for this parish was old Chester Church built near the present town of Centerville. It was torn down in 1834 and rebuilt in that town. In 1717 the vestry began the Chapel of Ease, now Wye Church, which is in excellent repair and stands almost hidden from view amongst some of the largest oaks to be seen anywhere on the Eastern Shore. This became the parish church, in 1860, of Wye Parish formed at that time.

THE REV. JOHN LILLINGSTON was minister from 1691 to 1709 when he died. He had held services in Talbot county as early as 1681.⁴

WHITEMARSH CHURCH, the ruins of which are to be seen near the little settlement of "Hambleton," is supposed to have been built about 1666. It became the parish church in 1692. These ruins are now in Whitmarsh Parish. The parish church of St. Peter's Parish is now (1923) in Easton.

THE REV. MR. LILLINGSTON was minister before 1691. It is supposed that the Rev. Joseph Leich became the rector of St. Peter's Parish in 1692. Court records show that he baptized children in that section of the county as early as 1689.⁴ There was a church erected at Oxford in 1695.⁵ Rev. James Clayland preached in 1694, 1695 and 1696.⁶

SOMERSET COUNTY

Named after Mary Somerset, sister of Lord Baltimore.

SOMERSET COUNTY was erected by proclamation on the 22nd of August 1666. The territory lying No. 8 south of the Choptank River and extending to Watkin's Point and the line drawn from thence to the "Maine Ocean" was settled for the most part by people from the county to the south of it—the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

On February 4th, 1662, John Elzey, Randall Revell and Stephen Horsey were commissioned Justices for the territory. They held their offices until the 20th of the following February at which time they were reappointed, with the exception of Mr. Revell. He was succeeded by Capt. William Thorne. August 15th 1663 Capt. John Odber was added to the Justices whose names appear above.¹ They were described as "Commissioners for that part of the Province newly seated called the Eastern Shore." Commissions were issued on the 28th of August 1665 to Mr. Stephen Horsey and Capt. William Thorne to continue Justices on the "Eastern Shore"² with the following six new appointees:—George Johnson, William Stephens, John White, John Winder, James Jones, and Henry Boston, Gent. Capt. William Thorne was commissioned to command all the forces on the "Eastern Shore of the Province."

Upon the erection of Somerset county, August 22nd, 1666, the Justices who had been appointed the previous year for the "Eastern Shore," were reappointed. Mr. Stephen Horsey was made Sheriff of the new county.

REPORT to the Assembly

July 30 1694.

“Somerset county has 4 Parishes laid out but never a Church.”³

THE FIRST COURT HOUSE of Somerset County was built in 1671 at Back Creek on a part of the now well known “Westover” farm.⁴ Prior to this date, as was the custom in the other counties of the Province, court was doubtless held at the home of some one of the Justices. In 1694 a court house was built near Dividing Creek. “Upon the division of the County and the erection of part of it into Worcester County, the Court House was built at Princess Anne. NO CHURCH had been built but provision was made for its erection shortly after the choosing of the Vestrymen (1692). Dr. Ethan Allen states in his manuscript history of the various parishes that “All Saints Church was there before 1691.” He also states that the Rev. Mr. Huett was preaching there. This church is doubtless the one now known as “Old Monie” and stands just West of Princess Anne, the county seat of Somerset County.

GREAT CHOPTANK PARISH was on the northern side of the county and included most of the present county of Dorchester. The parish was divided from Dorchester parish on the south by a line "Begining at the mouth of the little Choptanck binding therewith to the head of s^d River,—from thence with a straight line to the north Branch of Blackwater River to Benj. Hunt's Plantation, thence down said river to the mouth of the same."¹

CHRIST

CAMBRIDGE, DORCHESTER COUNTY

The first services of the Church after the Establishment were held in this parish (Great Choptank) in the Court House at Cambridge.

TRINITY, SAID TO HAVE BEEN BUILT PRIOR TO THE ESTABLISHMENT

CHURCH CREEK, DORCHESTER COUNTY

Twice in its existence, in 1853 and again in 1914, this old Church has been repaired, after falling into decay and disuse, and while it may be the oldest church, it has not been continuously used as a place of worship as long as has St. Paul's Church, Kent County.

DORCHESTER PARISH occupied all of the territory south of the Little Choptank and the line that No. 28 connected it with the Black Water river. Some later writers contend that the waters of Fishing Creek are really the headwaters of the Little Choptank.

THE OLD CHURCH of Dorchester Parish which is still standing is said to have been built prior to the “Establishment.” It is known as Trinity Church, first receiving this name April 17, 1853 when consecrated by the Rt. Rev. Henry J. Whitehouse, then Bishop of Illinois, and acting for Bishop Wm. R. Whittingham, then Bishop of Maryland, who was sick at the time.

THE REV. THOMAS HOWELL was rector from 1697 to 1708;² the Rev. Thomas Howell incumbent in 1696.³ The Rev. Mr. Huett was preaching in Dorchester Parish in 1691.⁴

CECIL COUNTY

Named after Cecilius Calvert, second Lord Baltimore.

CECIL COUNTY was erected by proclamation in 1674.

Its boundaries included, for about two weeks,
No. 10 all of the area now within the two counties of Cecil and Kent.

The proclamation erecting the county bore date of June 6th, 1674, and its provisions were met with such a storm of protests from the inhabitants of the lower part of what is now Kent county that the Proprietary in less than two weeks issued an "Order," June 19th 1674, giving back to Kent what she had held as hers for many years. The "Order" read in part as follows:—" . . . that so much of the Eastern side as was formerly added to Kent County doe still remaine and belong to the s^d County as aforesaid—."¹

"CECIL COUNTY is divided into two four Hundreds, viz^t

Worton	Hundred
South Sassafrax	"
Bohemia	"
Elk	" "2

TRINITY
ELKTON, CECIL COUNTY

ST. MARY, BUILT 1743
NORTHEAST, CECIL COUNTY
NORTH ELK, OR ST. MARY ANN'S PARISH

This church succeeded one built, probably, about the time, 1706, of the laying out of the parish.

“CECIL COUNTY is divided into two Parishes, viz^t
South Sassafrax
North Sassafrax.”¹

These two parishes comprised all of the county and they were divided by the “Sassafrax” river.

REPORT TO THE ASSEMBLY

July 30 1694

“Cecil County hath 3 parishes
1 vacant of both
Church & Minister.”²

THE COURT HOUSE was first located on Ordinary Point on the Sassafras River. Later on moved to Charlestown and still later to “Head of Elk,” now
Elkton, the present County Seat.

² Arch. Md., Vol. 20, p. 111.

The Fulham records mention 31 parishes in the province. It was evidently expected that the other parish (St. Andrew's) would be laid out to cover the territory to the north of the Elk river. Just why it never was laid out I have been unable to find. The records of the county show that only two parishes were laid out notwithstanding the “Report” to the Assembly.

"SOUTH SASSAFRAX PARISH consists of these following Hundreds, viz^t

No. 29	Worton	Hundred
	South Sassafrax	" "1

At that time the parish was bounded on the north by the Sassafras river, on the west by the Chesapeake Bay, on the south by a line running from the head of Worton creek to some point on Morgan's creek. Like the other border parishes its outer bounds were identical with those of the Province.³

SHREWSBURY CHURCH at the head of Turners creek in Kent County was the parish church. It was first built about 1693. The present church in 1823.

THE REV. LAWRENCE VANDERBUSH, the first rector, was serving from 1692 until his death in 1696.³ The Rev. Rich'd Sewell succeeded him;⁴ which is confirmed by another authority.⁵

SHREWSBURY, BUILT 1832
LOCUST GROVE, KENT COUNTY

When Shrewsbury Parish was laid out in 1692 a church, according to the records, was then standing that had been built prior to 1691. The first parish church was built in 1693, repaired in 1701, again in 1705, and rebuilt of brick in 1729. That one was torn down in 1829 and the present one built in 1832.

ST. STEPHEN
EARLEVILLE, CECIL COUNTY

When the first parish church of North Sassafras Parish was built, 1705, it succeeded a "Meeting House" which was standing as early as 1691. The parish church has been rebuilt three times: 1737, 1823 and again in 1873.

"NORTH SASSAFRAX PARISH consists of Bohemia and Elk Hundreds."¹ It was bounded on the No. 30 south by the Sassafras river on the east its bounds were the same as those of the Province. This was true of the northern boundary also. The Chesapeake bay was its western boundary. It was later called St. Stephen's Parish.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH stands at the head of Bohemia river. The first church on the spot was begun in 1702 and dedicated in 1706.

THE REV. LAWRENCE VANDERBUSH was rector from 1692 to 1694. The Rev. Rich'd Sewell was incumbent in 1696.³ He was sent as rector of this and South Sassafras Parish³ in 1697. He also preached at St. Ann's Church near Middletown,⁴ Delaware, about 1704.

NORTH ELK PARISH was erected⁶ out of this parish by Act of the Assembly in 1706, Chapter 4. It is now called St. Mary Ann's Parish.

ST. BARNABAS, BUILT 1772
LEELAND, PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY

Parish Church of Queen Anne Parish, laid out 1704. In the St. Barnabas Church which preceded this building was placed over the altar a painting of the Last Supper by Gustavus Hesselius. The trusses that hold the vaulted roof have been ceiled, hiding the beauty of the timber work.

At a Council Meeting at Annapolis

June 1700

There was a letter written to the Commissioners of Trade and Plantation refuting some charges made against the Law by the members of the Church of Rome and by the Quakers. The letter is in part as follows:

“We¹ assert to your Lord^{ships}, for an undoubted truth, that there is nothing imposed upon any dissenting Protestant or even Papist but the payment of 40^{lb.} p poll equal with his Maj^{ties} other Protestant Subjects & none of the other injunctions in that Law have been so much as pretended to be imposed upon any dissenting Protestant but, on the contrary they are permitted the quiet & peaceable enjoyment & use of their Religion wth out the Least Molestation whatsoever & therefore they greatly wrong that Law & the Gov^t by their Insinuations in the first second & third exceptions.

There has no sects of Religion here opposed that law but the Papists and the Quakers who from the first beginning of his Ma^{ties} happy Gov^t here with which that Law entered, have with their greatest might obstructed it, . . . in fine may it please your Lordships their design is not only against that Law but Establishing Protestant Religion here, and there might be no more Countenance given to it now under his Ma^{ties} Gov^t than was under Lord Baltimore's who was a Papist & as they say so it was Liberty of Conscience to all without publick Countenance to any but we are assured as by his Ma^{ties} matchless valour and conduct he pre-
